

GIRL BRIDE ILL OF GRIEF FOR VANISHED BOY HUBBY.

Schoolgirl Wife Declares Willie Hawe's Stern Father Has Made Him a Prisoner to Separate Two Loving Hearts.

William Thompson Hawe, the eighteen-year-old school boy who secretly married Minnie Florine Wilson, the pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of William Vernon, a real estate broker of Mount Vernon, in Brooklyn, on May 6, and whose wedding has just been announced, is missing and his bride is ill-prostrated that no word has come from her husband.

In Mount Vernon it is said that William Hawe is not the boy to desert his bride when she most needs his sympathy and support. His friends hint that he would be with her if he could.

Meanwhile Minnie Hawe is crying bitterly and calling for the boy who promised to protect her. She was prostrated when a reporter for The Evening World called.

Young Bride's Story.

The story of their meeting and how much he loved her was told by the beautiful little girl as follows:

"I met William at the house of friends, about a year and a half ago, and I know he liked me. I liked him. We were both going to school then. Willie became attentive and took me out to parties and bought me presents. It was a year ago that he asked me to marry him. He was afraid that his brother, Matthew, would cut him out during his absence. Mamma found it out, and he promised her not to marry secretly. But Willie could not wait. I trusted him because I love him.

"We went to Brooklyn, where Rev. Dr. D. A. Kennedy married us. I was awfully scared at first, but Willie loved me and I loved him, so what was there to do? We intended to announce it after he was graduated, but a letter was found by mamma, and she went to the minister after I told her about it.

"Mamma was very kind to me, took me in her arms, and after she saw that we were legally married, forgave us, but said she was very sorry that we did it.

Boy Bridegroom a Prisoner.

"Thursday we went to New York and returned on Friday. Then Willie went to see his father, and was treated shamefully. Mr. Hawe not only abused him, but threatened him. He also said he would lock him up. When he did not return I went to see Mr. Hawe at his home, No. 302 East Lincoln avenue. I asked Mr. Hawe for my husband. He said to me:

"He is not here."
"I said 'You have got him locked up.'"
"He said, 'Well, suppose I have?'
"I could not conceal my agitation and remarked, 'I'll get a lawyer and get my husband.'

"Then he said: 'I can get a lawyer too, and I want you to understand Willie is not of age and I am his guardian.'"

"Will is gone away, and he went because he was afraid of his father. But he will come back and come to our house. I am trying not to worry, but it is so hard to be separated from your husband and not know where he is. I am just ready to cry again. But Willie will come back."

Mr. Hawe has been quoted as objecting strongly to the match. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bride, does not like his position. She said emphatically this morning that if any one got the worst of the bargain it was not the Hawe family. She said:

"I feel that it is no honor to marry into that family. It was not a disgrace for Minnie to marry Willie, because he is a fine fellow. I shall not say anything more."

Young Hawe is a manly boy and he knew he was bearding a lion in its den to approach his father. He told his wife that nothing in the world would separate them. He loved her and with a devotion that time would never erase. No one was going to take her away from him, and the best days of his life would be spent in making her happy.

Swore He Would Not Desert.
When he came back to the Wilson house, after his interview with his father, young Hawe was pale, but

WADMAN BEATEN BY NURSE FOLEY.

Jury Censures Manhattan State Hospital and Exonerates Bellevue.

The Coroner's jury that for weeks has held an inquiry into the death of Herbert C. Wadman on March 5 under suspicious circumstances to-day brought in the following verdict:

"We find that Herbert C. Wadman came to his death on March 5 at the Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, and by chronic nephritis and acute pneumonia aggravated and hastened by broken ribs and injuries to his chest and head, and we exonerate the Bellevue Hospital authorities from all blame. We find that the said bodily injuries were inflicted at the Manhattan State Hospital by Attendant John Foley, and that Keeper Michael Carroll was a party thereto. We also censure the authorities of Manhattan State Hospital for neglect of duty, and especially censure Dr. Lewis C. Pettit for neglect ing the patient, who, he testified, was suffering from chronic nephritis, by failing to treat the patient for said disease."

Wadman was thirty-six years old. He tended bar at No. 184 Park avenue. He became ill and insane on Feb. 21 and was taken to Bellevue. Two days later he was transferred to the Manhattan State Hospital, where he died.

Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon performed an autopsy and found that several of Wadman's ribs had been broken in and that he had been otherwise maltreated. At first the Bellevue attendants were accused of the ill-treatment, but Commissioner Keller vigorously denied that it took place there.

Foley and Carroll now face indictment for manslaughter, and charges will, it is said, be preferred against Dr. Pettit.

determined. He told the family that he had never been through such a scene. His father threatened to punish him in a way he would not like. He played his cause, but it was hopeless. His father was unforgiving. William affirmed that nothing, not a dozen fathers, could separate him from his wife and that he would stick to her through thick and thin.

The Wilsons have a beautiful home at No. 32 Elm street, Chester Hill, and Minnie's father, Mr. Wilson, says she is going to see her husband at all odds.

Matthew Hawe, father of the boy, is secretary of the Rubber Trust.

There were reports in Mount Vernon today that young Hawe was going to quit college, despite his parents' efforts to keep him there, and that he intends to go to work at civil engineering. It is said that he does not want the marriage annulled, and if his parents will not help him, that he will support his wife himself.

BRIDGES IN THE BRONX.

Two New Viaducts Now Ready for Traffic.

Two new bridges in the borough of the Bronx will be opened to the public within two weeks. On July 4 the new structure connecting the mainland with City Island will be opened with informal ceremonies.

The new Willis Avenue Bridge, which is completed, with the exception of a few finishing touches, will be opened during the week beginning July 15. This will make the thirteenth bridge spanning the Harlem River between the Harlem Hills, off the foot of East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, and the Harlem ship canal where it connects with the Hudson River.

The fourteenth bridge over the Harlem is now in course of constructing, and will connect Lenox avenue, in Manhattan Borough, with One Hundred and Forty-ninth street in the Bronx.

YORK TO SIFT CREEK TRAGEDY

Police Trying to Find Slayers of Trolley Victims.

Deputy Police Commissioner Bernard J. York said to-day that he was having a thorough investigation made of the accidents which resulted in the deaths of two men on the trestle of the Culver bridge over Coney Island creek.

Commissioner York said: "I understand that this is a dangerous trestle, and I am going to have a thorough investigation made. I received reports from Capt. Briscoe this morning, and they agree with the story published in The World."

"I do not know that there is a law that will compel the railroad company to station men at each end of the trestle to warn pedestrians, but I will look into it. If the statutes make it possible I shall get after the railroad company." Clarence Wentz, motorman, twenty-five years old, of No. 194 Tenth street, has been arrested on suspicion of being in charge of the car that killed the unknown man on the trestle at 9 o'clock Saturday night.

LITTLE MAID ROSIE STOLE GEMS TO BE A LADY A WHILE.

"Love Is Above Some Things," Said the Child, Under the "Third Degree."

Rosie Youngblood is fourteen years old and true to her "steady." This little creature, chambermaid at Mrs. Lillian Block's boarding-house at No. 233 West Sixty-first street, who robbed her mistress of $200 worth of jewels and clothing, laughs lightly at the thought of spending seven years in jail.

The doors of her prison are open to her if she will tell the name of the gay youth who lived upon her bounty for three days. She tips her nose to an angle of 45 degrees and regards the detectives with utmost contempt.

"Now, you can't get nothin' from me." It was hot in Magistrate's Duell's court. The Judge was hotter and the detectives enjoyed the weather in the superlative degree. Rosie alone was cool. She lent an atmosphere to the courtroom that was original and refreshing.

The third degree had failed to move her from the stand she had taken. Mrs. Block cries for her jewels, while the child, with her head high in the air, retorts:

"Love is above some things." Magistrate Duell looked as though he wanted to come off the bench and spank her, but he refused to lose his dignity.

"Tell you who I was with? Naw. Say, do you think I can't be a lady if I am in trouble. Oh, but it was worth all of this annoyance you people cause me. Please go away. I don't care to talk with you."

She lifted her short skirts disdainfully and walked to a corner and smiled evasively. It all happened because Rosie wanted to be a real lady. The day was warm and the idea of making up beds did not appeal to her mood. She stood before her mistress's glass and surveyed herself thoughtfully as she adjusted a new hat that became Mrs. Block.

"I will be a lady," she said. With the hat came out clothes that set her petite figure off to perfection.

Decking herself out with several gems, which caused Mrs. Block to faint when she discovered their loss, Rosie tripped downstairs and turned the cook green with envy.

"Oh, the looks of her, the haughty. To be after givin' me sass and looking so dependent. Worra the way the gurl lost her head. And she say, say she, 'Mud felle will be after droppin' dead at the sight of so much fineness.'"

Rosie hid herself to Coney Island. She had an escort who is now in hiding. Her pocketbook was full of Mrs. Block's money, and everything from a ride on the scenic railroad to hot tamales and lemonade furnished means of entertainment and refreshment.

She dipped in the cool waters of the ocean and rode horseback astride. She made waiters look silly by tipping them graciously. The police alone had terror for the girl, and these she avoided.

But life at Coney could not last forever. She came back to New York and wandered in Central Park, listening to consensu, but refusing to obey. Rosie, 42½ entirely unconcerned when a detective approached her and told her to go with him to the station-house. "Walk with you. Please forget I'm a lady. I don't care to have anything to do with you. Who was I with? I refuse to discuss the matter."

Rosie forgot she was a lady long enough to laugh. "Why, youse chumps to tink you can get anything out of me. You make me weary."

She wore the same air in court, and was held in $500 bail for trial in the Court of General Sessions. The agent for the Gerry Society took Rosie to headquarters, at Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street, where she will remain until her trial. The girl was offered her freedom and a sum of money if she would disclose the whereabouts of the diamonds. To this promise she declined to reply.

TWO WOMEN BURNED.

One Will Probably Die—Gasoline Caused the Blaze.

BRIDGEFORD, N. J., July 1.—Mrs. Ella Elwell was probably fatally burned in a fire which to-day destroyed the double frame house occupied by John Sheppard and Willis Broadwater.

Mrs. Sheppard was also seriously burned. Mrs. Elwell was lying ill in Mr. Sheppard's house and her bed caught fire.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove which Mrs. Sheppard was lighting. The contents of both houses were consumed.

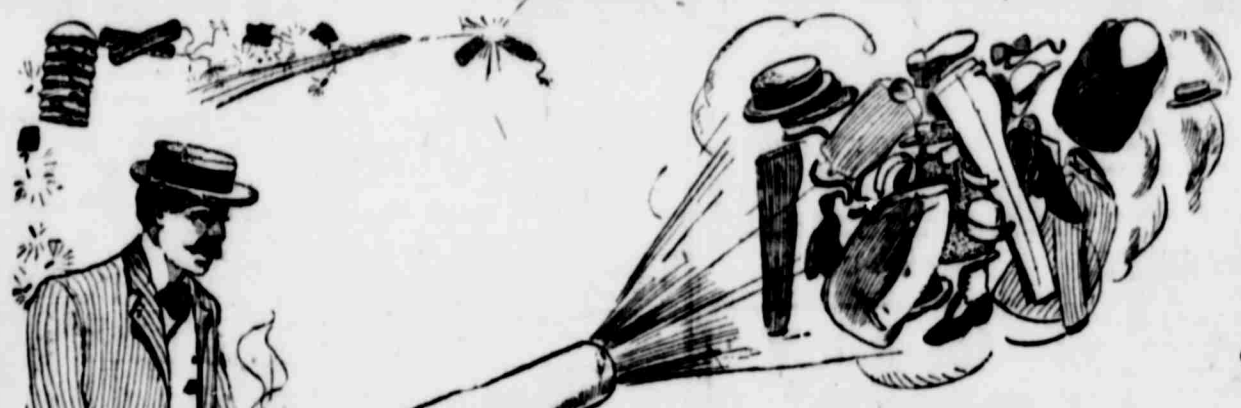

LIEUT. DOWNES KILLED.

Slain by Rebels in Samar Province, Philippines.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Gen. MacArthur cables to the War Department from Manila that First Lieut. Edward H. Downes, First Infantry, was killed in Samar.

Downes was appointed to West Point from Texas in 1896, but in 1898 entered the service as a Second Lieutenant without graduating from the Military Academy.
